Winemaker Terry Boehm will lead us through a tutored wine tasting. The sheltered cool environment with sufficient water and warmth enables slow and complete ripening of the Shiraz and Sauvignon Blanc grapes. The grapes have distinct characteristics from the terroir, which provides a strong point of differentiation over other Shiraz wines. The vineyard is located on the northern slopes of the Great Dividing Range, bordering the Heathcote region. At an elevation of 440 meters, with rolling basaltic hills and sheltered outlook the location is ideal for achieving slow ripened fruit for production of premium cool climate wine.

cool climate grape varieties such as Chardonnay, Riesling, Shiraz, Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon thrive in rich volcanic soils; while the regions Pinot Gris and Pinot Noir grapes are thought to be among the purest in the world. A boutique operation, Paramoor Winery is not about mass production. Quality always comes before quantity – and there is quality in everything the winery does. The cellar door tasting and sales area are converted from old stables. It draws a crowd as much for its relaxed ambience and thoughtful displays of history, as for its outstanding wines.
